Around The May-Pole

THE happiest army in the world on the first of next month will be the army of children who will dance around the May-poles in parks in big cities, in groves on the prairies, in fields on the farms and wherever there is sunshine and a patch of green to dance upon, not only in the United States but in England, France and Germany as well. This festival is said to be a survival of an ancient observance by the Romans in honor of Flora, the goddess of flowers.

In medieval England, lads and lassies sallied forth on May day morning to gather the hawthorn blossoms or "May" along the country lanes. With it they crowned the fairest maiden of them all and proclaimed her "Queen of the May." They then set up the May-poles decked with garlands and danced the morris-dance the whole of the living day.

In Modern Times

The dancing in these days is somewhat less strenuous, but every year there are dances and a dainty, fresh crop of irresistible little May queens who give forth their edicts, and rule for a day. Curiously enough, one edict that is almost universal among these temporary monarchs is that there shall be plenty of delicious food wherewith to regale their subjects, so we are suggesting a menu and recipes which will be in keeping with this edict. Here it is:

May Day Menu
Melon Balls in Orange Juice
Chicken and Pea Shortcake
Buttered Carrots in Mashed Potato Nests
Jelly Sandwiches
Snow Pudding with Raspberry Sauce
Chocolate Cinnamon Malted Milk
Hard Candies
Popcorn
Chicken and Pea Shortcake

Make a white sauce of three tablespoons butter, three tablespoons flour, two cups rich milk, liquor from one 11-ounce can peas and one teaspoon salt. Add cut-up chicken from a 12-ounce can and the peas and heat. Just before serving, add one slightly beaten egg yolk and one teaspoon lemon juice. Serve on tiny buttered split baking powder biscuits and top with the other half of biscuit, buttered. Serves eight liberally.

Snow Pudding with Raspberry Custard.—Soften two teaspoons gelatin in two tablespoons cold water, dissolve in one-half cup boiling water. Add one-third cup sugar and one-fourth cup lemon juice; stir until dissolved and let cool until thick as honey. Fold in three stiffly beaten egg whites, pile lightly in glasses and chill. When ready to serve pour over the following Raspberry Custard. Serves eight.

Raspberry Custard.—Beat two egg yolks slightly, add two tablespoons sugar and two tablespoons water, then the contents of one 8-ounce can raspberries. Cook in double boiler until creamy. Chill. Chocolate Cinnamon Malted Milk.—Mix one-third cup malted milk, one-half cup canned chocolate syrup, two teaspoons cinnamon, one cup water and five cups milk (or diluted evaporated) in a large bowl and beat well, or in glass jars and shake thoroughly. Serve over cracked ice. Makes eight tall glasses.
